AMUSEMENTS.

The scenery and stage settings used in John W. Vogel's Big City Minstrels, which comes to the Paris Grand on Thursday, March 9, is said to be the most elaborate and expensive ever used for a similar purpose. The setting is called the Electric Velour Palace, a befitting title, because of the appropriate costumes, and the numerous and powerful calcium and electrical effects used thereon. This is the only setting of the kind in use by a minstrel organization as the cost of same prohibits the average manager from investing the amount of capital required. Seats on sale at Bordeaux.

One of the finest scenes in "Diplomacy," to be produced by Rose Coghlan and Howard Kyle, who has been especially engaged to play Henri Beauchere at Paris Grand Monday, March 13th, is the interview between the brothers Henri and Julian Beauchere and the Russian attaché, Baron Stoin. In this interview the baron is forced to part with a letter that compromises Julian Beauchere's innocent girl wife. The situation is a tremendous one and has given full play to the abilities of some of the greatest actors of the old days. Howard Kyle as Henri Beauchere dominates the scene completely.

The most interesting of the season's events will be the appearance at the Paris Grand of Miss Marie Wainwright as Viola, in her splendid production of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," on Saturday, March 11th, matinee and night. The host of star parts in this comedy makes its interpretation by a star cast a necessity, and such is this season's support of Miss Wainwright. This actress, united to a high degree two qualities rarely possessed in an equal manner by the same artist, refinement and strength. Possessed of a warm emotional temperament and a very sympathetic voice her comedy is as piquant as her feeling is profound. By this means she makes it easy to understand why the gentle Viola, transformed into Cesario, should become the duke's favorite page. The staging of this comedy has been made a great feature. Scenically considered it is a series of glorious pictures, a kaleidoscopic spectacle of color and light. Saturday matinee and night, March 11th.

Paris theatre goers will have an opportunity to witness the all star production of "The Two Orphans" at the Lexington Opera House Saturday Matinee and Night, Saturday, March 11th. This is the same organization as created such a sensation at the New Amsterdam Theatre New York last spring. The success attained by it then was so great that the various stars interested were prevailed to make a short tour of the leading cities of the country this season. The event will be one of the most interesting in the history of the local stage, as never before have so many prominent actors been seen together in one company and it is not probable that such an organization will ever again be sent on the road, as the expense attached to it is so great it makes it impossible. It was necessary to find a play that the parts were so evenly balanced and no one player would have an undue advantage over the other. The only play known to the English speaking language stage which fulfilled all these requirements was "The Two Orphans." In selecting the cast for the revival Liebler & Co. were actuated by two motives, they wished to give the public an opportunity to see a perfectly acted play and they also wanted to settle the question as to the comparative merits of the two schools of acting. The representative of the old school in the company are James O'Neill, Clara Morris, Louis James, and Elita Proctor Otis, the representatives of the modern school are Sarah Truax, Isabel Irving, Bijou Fernandez, Mrs. LeMoine, Jameson Lee Finney and J. E. D. Dean.

"FOUND."

Odd Notice in Prominent Southern Paper of Interest to Paris Residents

One of the best known newspapers in the South is the "Guide" of Dunn, N. C. Its publisher, J. P. Pitman, sends us the following clipping with request to publish:

"Found,—by the editor of the Guide, a bottle of Hyomei, the wonderful treatment that cures catarrh without stomach dosing. We can speak in the highest praise of its remarkable power to cure and relieve catarrh of the head and throat. This mention is made not as an advertisement, but in the interest of those who suffer the torture of that terrible disease, catarrh."

In sending the clipping, Mr. Pitman wrote the following letter:

"I enclose a little piece from my paper, issued to-day. You will see from this that I desire to push the selling of Hyomei as far as possible. I am using it in my own family, and find that it gives the desired relief, so that I take pleasure in spreading far and near the knowledge of this sure relief for catarrh."

Clark & Co., in preparation for the catarrhal troubles of this season of the year, have ordered a large stock of Hyomei, and sell it under guarantee to refund the money if it does not relieve. The complete outfit costs but $1.00 and extra bottles can be obtained for 50 cents. Ask them to show you the strong guarantee under which they sell it. This remarkable remedy medicates the air you breathe, soothing and healing the mucous membrane of the air passages, and making a complete cure of the worst case of catarrh.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Patsey Edwards, aged 75 years, died Sunday at the residence of her son, Ossian Edwards, on South Main street, of general debility. Mrs. Edwards was the only surviving sister of Mr. John B. Kennedy, one of Bourbon's wealthiest and most prominent farmers. She leaves five children to mourn her loss—Mrs. Walter Clark, Mrs. John McIlvain, Mrs. Alice Ware, Miss Julia Edwards and Mr. Ossian Edwards, the well-known groceryman and commission merchant of this city. Mrs. Edwards was for many years a consistent member of the Christian Church, a kind and charitable neighbor, and as a mother, lovingly and devotedly interested in the welfare and happiness of her children.

The funeral will occur from the residence to-day (Tuesday) at 2:30 o'clock. Services at Elder J. S. Sweeney and Elder Taylor Sharrard. Burial at Paris cemetery.

Pall-bearers: Buckner Woodford, Harry Stamler, Dr. J. T. Vansant, C. A. Daugherty, John T. McClintock, B. M. Renick, John T. Hedges and Thomas Helm Clay.

Mrs. Sallie Brown, a most highly esteemed lady of 67 years, died Friday morning at her home on South Main. Her aged husband preceded her to the grave only two months ago. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mattie Durham, of this city, and Mrs. J. B. Soper, of Little Rock, this county. Funeral services were held from the residence Saturday morning, conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. L. Clark. Burial in Paris cemetery.

Suggestion to Interurban.

We would like to suggest to the Interurban people that if they would only hang a clock and put in a few electric lights at their waiting station here the commodious quarters would be complete. The old oil lamp now in use gives a dim light and a time piece would be appreciated by their patrons. This is merely a friendly suggestion for the public good.

"The Girl and the Goose."

The presentation of "The Girl and the Goose" at the Lexington opera house, Friday evening, by the Dramatic Club of State College, was a decided hit. The piece is a musical comedy, written by Mr. Wood Ballard, a cousin of Mrs. A. P. Allis, of this city. Clay Sutherland and Carey Morgan, Paris boys, took two leading parts and were highly complimented by the Lexington papers.

CAHAL BROS., who are successors to A. T. Crawford in the barbering business, are now conducting a first-class barber shop in every respect and invite their friends and the public to call. Besides these two experienced tonsorial artists, they have other competent assistants to wait on the trade. Elegant bath rooms attached. A fine line of 5 and 10 cent cigars always on hand. (7-2t)

PRESIDENT BEGINS HIS SECOND TERM

ROOSEVELT TAKES OATH BEFORE IMMENSE AUDIENCE.

SOLEMNITY MARKS EVENT.

Multitude Awed as Chief Executive Repeats Binding Words—Twenty-One Guns Boom Salute—Fairbanks Is Inducted.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States, and, to the best of my ability, protect, preserve and defend the constitution of the United States." With these words Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States for the past three years, was Saturday inaugurated for another term to the highest office which it is the privilege of an American citizen to attain.

Chief Justice Fuller, with all the solemnity of the three other occasions of like character in which he has figured during his career, administered the oath to the president. This was the fourth and last instance in which the chief justice is to be the second figure of importance. Hardly had the president finished his inaugural address and disappeared within the capitol building than the hush which had fallen upon the spectators when he raised his hand preparatory to taking the oath was broken by the deafening roar of 21 guns in official salute to the executive, just entering upon his second term as president.

Interest at Its Height.
During the hours intervening between the gathering of the crowd and the ceremony there was no letting down of the tension of interest. The passing of a uniformed horseman was sufficient to call forth cheers, although in some sections the multitude showed signs of restlessness. This was true particularly on the outskirts of the throng where, pressed by constantly arriving recruits, many struggled to get nearer to the point of interest. The effect upon the densely packed multitude was a continuous surging backward and forward—a turbulent sea of humanity.

The rendezvousing of the troops, committees and civic societies entertained the crowd throughout the long wait incident to the schedule. The various organizations arriving by different routes passed into the narrow defiles which the police kept open, the brilliant uniforms of the troops, the bright sashes of the committees and the rich caparisoning of the horses lending themselves to a kaleidoscopic, panoramic effect. Cheers upon cheers greeted the constantly shifting picture.

As rapidly as the troops arrived they took the positions assigned them. The military escort stretched far to the left and consisted of all branches of the service—horse, foot and artillery. To the right were grouped division after division of state troops, and in different places of honor the other organizations took their stand to await the signal to move.

The movements of the gathering troops and organizations were not all the crowd had for its entertainment. Directly in its front preparations were in progress for the inauguration itself. The monster stand, in the form of an open amphitheater, accommodating 7,000 persons, had been erected on a line with the rotunda of the capitol and there decorators were engaged in arranging for the ceremony and ushers busied themselves learning the sections to be assigned to the various officials and distinguished guests.

Notables Begin to Arrive.
Shortly after noon, just following the induction into office of Vice President Fairbanks, the monster stand, decorated with plants, flowers, flags and bunting, began to fill with the people who had just finished witnessing the ceremonies in the senate chamber, and scarcely a half hour passed before this coign of vantage was filled to overflowing. Added to the color afforded by the plants and bunting were the brilliant costumes of the women, and these put on a touch of variety which rivaled the occasion of four years ago. Every ledge about the capitol and the windows were filled to the point of overflowing with their human burdens, and long before the official party appeared the streets were jammed as far as the eye could reach.

Several minutes before one o'clock an extra loud burst of cheers from the multitude just in front of the main capitol door called the attention from the brilliant parade of uniforms in the street to the official party, which had just come through the main door. "The president, there he is," and similar cries came from the assembled populace, but the nation's chief was not to come for some moments.

A hush was noticeable in the crowd. The official entrance was dramatic. All except those who were participating in the ceremony were seated. When the justices of the supreme court, with the exception of Chief Justice Fuller, emerged from between the Corinthian pillars and marched down the sloping carpeted aisle to their station they were greeted with applause. The justices wore their robes and skull-caps. Then came the members of the diplomatic corps, in their gorgeous uniforms, and they evoked thunderous applause. Led by Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador and dean of the corps, and followed by the others in order of precedence, they took seats on the right of the stand. Strolling in after them came members of the cabinet, senators and representatives in congress.

Hush as President Comes.

Following on the heels of the official party came Mrs. Roosevelt and a party of friends; then, but a moment later, the new vice president, Mr. Fairbanks, and his escort arrived and were greeted by tremendous bursts of applause. As soon as Vice President Fairbanks seated himself the cheers ceased, the military presented arms, every hat in the committee came off and the great ocean of people set up a perfect roar of cheers, fairly shouting itself hoarse.

Quick as a flash every sound was stilled and President Roosevelt, quiet and composed of demeanor, came from between the gigantic pillars, escorted by Chief Justice Fuller. A random burst of cheers came from the front of the crowd as with measured tread, in harmony with the dignified step of the chief justice, the president advanced in state down the long aisle of distinguished guests. By this time all were standing and nothing could be heard above the roar of thunderous welcome. Immediately following came, arm in arm, the members of the committee on arrangements. As the president passed down the aisle he bared his head and with characteristic sweep of his hat bowed in acknowledgement of the salutations from the stand and the ovation from the people.

MAP SHOWING HOW RUSSIANS ARE BEING HEMMED IN BY JAPS

With Oku on his right flank and Kuroki on his left, and his center undergoing an almost unbearable bombardment from 11-inch guns, Kuropatkin is, it is believed, preparing to retreat to Tieling, 40 miles north of Mukden. The stores at Salun and Fushun already have been removed.

THE RUSSIAN ARMY

Field Marshal Oyama is Continuing His Great Drives Around Both Flanks.

BIG QUANTITIES OF STORES TAKEN

The Bloody Fighting and Heavy Losses Will Be Increased When Masses of Infantry Meet.

The Grand Total of the Number of Russian Troops East of Lake Baikal Is Estimated at About 700,000.

Tokio, March 6.—Field Marshal Oyama is continuing his great drives around both flanks of the Russian army. His front is now a huge bow, the base on the Shakhe river, the right arm reaching a point east of Fushun, and the left arm extending to a point west of Mukden. He is steadily tightening the great cord of men and steel. Gen. Kuropatkin is striving desperately to check the Japanese advances, contesting the flank encroachments and hammering the Japanese center. The Japanese are making heavy gains of ground west of the railway and have captured great quantities of stores and other supplies. There has already been bloody fighting and heavy losses, and this will be vastly increased when the masses of infantry meet.

Field Marshal Oyama, reporting on March 4, says:

"A few days ago our force in the Hsienchiang direction pressed the enemy into his position at Tita, which is 15 miles southeast of Fushun, and Manchuntun, 15 miles south of Fushun. The engagement continues in the Shakhe direction.

Four Determined Attacks Repulsed.

"The night of March 3 the enemy made four determined attacks against our positions at Housuntupotzu and Tangshiatun. All were entirely repulsed.

"In the district east of the railway the enemy's frequent small attacks were all repulsed.

"In the district west of the railway our force is continuing fierce attacks and has occupied the districts of Wuchenyang, five miles west of Shakhe village, and Laisanpao, three miles northwest of Wuchenyang, and Shuhopao, the terminus of the new railway constructed by the Russians.

"The force on the right of the Hun river is dislodging the enemy northwest of Siaopcho, which is between the Hun and Liao rivers, and has advanced north. This force carried the enemy's defense line between Chantan and Shufangtai, and pursued the enemy fiercely. The line now is between Wochiaho, 15 miles southwest of Mukden, and Taitse, 13 miles west of Mukden, and Tanupo, four miles north of Taitse.

The Casualties Were Heavy.

"During a previous engagement, the enemy's casualties were heavy. No time to investigate. We captured large quantities of provisions at Wanchangpao and captured a clothing depot at Tahantai."

Estimates of Gen. Kuropatkin's force between Shakhe and Tie Pass, prepared here, give a total of slightly more than 400,000, composed of 335,000 infantry, 33,000 cavalry and 35,000 artillery, with 1,504 guns. This estimate does not include troops at Vladivostok and other garrisons, railway guards and other employees. The grand total east of Lake Baikal is estimated at 700,000 men.

Show Signs of Retreat.

Tokio, March 6.—The Russians, driven from Chin Hocheng, passed Taen and have remained at Samlungku four days resisting the Japanese advance. The Russians there, although having received a reinforcement of over 20,000, show signs of retreat.

Raised Intense Interest.

London, March 6.—The intensely dramatic situation in Manchuria developed by Gen. Nogi's rapid advance and its strategic possibilities have raised excitement in Europe to the highest pitch.

THE INAUGURAL BALL.

Thousands of Women From Every State in the Union Attended.

Washington, March 6.—Inaugural festivities closed at midnight with a ball that in splendor, attendance and artistic effect fittingly ushered out a brilliant spectacular day.

Thousands of handsomely gowned women with escorts from every state in the union and nearly every civilized country in the grand illuminated court of the pension building paid their social duties to the nation's chief executive for the next four years.

The settings for the ball were beautiful with riotous wealth of color in flowers, evergreens, lights and plants. The ball opened formally at 9:30 o'clock with the arrival of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and party, and the Vice President and Mrs. Fairbanks. At this hour the balconies were crowded five deep with early comers, and the main court of the building was rapidly filled. The scene was gorgeous.

NEAR MUKDEN.

Rumble of Carts Drowned By the Roar of Battle.

Mukden, March 6.—The rumble of carts in the streets of Mukden is drowned by the roar of battle, which is raging northwest, west and southwest of the city, a few miles away, between Gen. Nogi's Port Arthur veterans and the hastily assembled army interposed by Gen. Kuropatkin to defend the city railroads. The stroke came like lightning out of a clear sky. It is reported that the situation has somewhat improved, but it still is extremely critical. It is reported that the Japanese have been thrown back in the district of Lunfashan and are retiring along the Sannintun road; but heavy fighting is continuing there. The Japanese vanguard posts are about six miles west of Mukden where the bursting of shrapnel is plainly visible.

VICTIMS OF THE WRECK.

All the Injured Are Reported To Be Recovering Rapidly.

Pittsburg, March 6.—All of those injured in the railroad wreck at Clifton and still at hospitals here are reported recovering rapidly. Maj. McQuigg, at the Bellevue hospital, is doing nicely. Of those taken to the Beaver county hospital, Rochester, only four remain. Of these the most seriously hurt is Lieut. Clifford B. Haskins, of the naval reserves, who besides a dislocated shoulder, is suffering from concussion of the brain and internal injuries are feared. Lieut. Stearn will leave the hospital and Capt. C. F. Geckler, it is thought, can be taken home sometime during the week. Jas. Gray, the colored cook, who at first was not expected to live is making rapid recovery. Lieut. F. W. Briggs, Lieut. Percy Bolden and Lieut. Walter McArrow were taken to Cleveland.

RECIPROCITY TREATY.

Germany Wants One With the United States.

Washington, March 6.—The Berlin advices indicating a purpose on the part of the German foreign office to renew its efforts to secure something in the nature of a reciprocity treaty with the United States have attracted much attention in official circles here as it has been known for some time past that this was in contemplation. In fact, this matter has taken shape semi-officially through the presentation of Secretary Hay of resolutions adopted by the American board of trade of Berlin favoring such an arrangement.

Gen. Klobber Wounded.

London, March 6.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Tokio states that the Japanese Col. Mimada was killed at the capture of Selkajo and that Col. Klobber, commander of the second Manchurian army, was wounded.

Ambassador Clayton Convalescent.

Mexico City, March 6.—Ambassador Clayton, who has been suffering from a severe attack of laryngitis, is convalescent. American Consul Parsons, who contracted a severe case of typhoid, is without much change.

STOCK AND CROP.

—J. H. Sober, of Lewisburg, Pa., has booked two mares to Jay Bird.

James W. Parrish, the largest tobacco grower in Woodford county, sold his crop of 240,000 pounds of tobacco at an average of about 10¢ cents per pound, or over $25,000 for the crop.

—W. A. Bacon bought of Drs. Haggard and Bryan, of Lexington, Jenny Megeath by Jay Bird, dam Jenny L. 2:23½ (dam of 4) by George Wilkes 2:23. is in foal to Onward Silver 2:05½.

—Auctioneer Forsyth makes following report of sale of J. D. Penn: Horse, $111 to $132; Mule, $117 50; one pair mules, $345; 25,000 tobacco sticks, $5.00 per thousand; farm implements good prices.

—Gus Macey, the well-known trotting horse trainer and driver, who has now a stable of runners at Hot Springs, put over another long shot at the Arkansas resort last week. His son rode the winner at odds of 16 to 1.

—Joseph Evans, of Scott, sold his fine saddle stallion, Highland Eagle, to Chas. Bailey, of Versailles, for $2,200. He will be remembered as the fine sorrel stallion handled by Shropshire Bros., of this city, several years ago.

—W. A. Bacon bought of E. L. Featherston, of Lexington, Echa King, by Clay King, dam Etha Clay (dam Miss Grace 2:15½, Lizzie T. 2:35) by Etham Wilkes, 2d dam Wild Plum (dam of Darnette 2:12½ and 4 others). She is in foal to Monibells 2:23½ and will be bred to Jay Bird.

—For the first time in the history of Woodburn Stock farm, the former home of the late A. B. Alexander, near Midway, several acres of the fine virgin soil will be plowed up and sown in tobacco. This farm of many hundred acres was never plowed during the life of Mr. Alexander, the broad bluegrass pastures being used for the famous trotting stock that were raised on it.

—We call attention to the advertisement in this issue of Maplehurst Stock Farm. The progressive young owner and breeder, W. A. Bacon, of this city, has at the head of his stud the noted Jay Bird, 2:31½, then comes Scarlet Wilkes 2:22½. He has done more for the price asked for his season than any horse in Kentucky—six in the 2:15 list, and his first two dams in the great brood mare list. Read the Maplehurst Farm adv.

Nay, Nay, Kind Friend.

The Lexington Herald, our esteemed contemporary, in an editorial Saturday, suggests that the Paris ladies that have taken up the hospital question here make the proposed one for Paris for tuberculosis patients for the Bluegrass counties. The editorial suggests good plans probably, but Paris and Bourbon county are not in need of a hospital for contagious diseases and tuberculosis. Nay, nay, kind friend! We do need and need badly a hospital that has all the modern advantages, so it will not be necessary to cart our loved ones off to some distant city to be operated on or to receive proper attention in minor diseases of which they often die for want of attention. We can almost at any time of the year name enough persons in the Lexington and Cincinnati hospitals from this county that would make an institution here pay, of course, with the assistance we would get from our city and county. We appreciate your kind suggestion, but we are going to have what we really need if it is possible to get it, and we are of the opinion it will be a go. So don't worry, in a few years we will be able to return favors and accommodate many Lexingtonians in our new up-to-date hospital with the best surgeons that can be found anywhere.

PAINTING.—Before giving your order for Spring painting, see Emmett Fitzgerald. He is agent for the celebrated Moser paints, their specialty being the Moser Railroad Roofing Paint. tf

Exorbitant Hotel Rates.

We hear considerable kicking from Knights Templars in regard to the exorbitant and extortionate rates that the Richmond hotels are trying to force them to pay when they attend the State Conclave to be held in that city May 16th to 19th. The Knights though seem to be equal to the emergency, for we understand the Paris and Cynthiana Commanderies have about closed contracts for a special train of buffet cars to carry them to Richmond and remain their for their quarters during the conclave. The cost of this is said to be much cheaper than the rates that have been given them by the Richmond hotels, and the accommodations on the cars are known to be first-class.

MATTINGS.—All kinds of mattings at all kinds of prices and all kinds of patterns. THE FAIR.

County Attorney Dundon Touched.

Our popular and efficient County Attorney, Denis Dundon, was touched for a nice little sum while enroute to New Orleans Friday. The following telegram from the Crescent City in Saturday's Courier-Journal gives all the information we have in regard to the matter:

"Mr. Denis Dundon, a lawyer from Paris, Ky., lost both of his pocket-books, which contained valuable papers and about $165. He came to the city on the New Orleans and Northeastern Railroad with his wife. When he was some distance from the depot he missed his pocketbooks."

It is a mistake in the telegram as to Mrs. Dundon being with her husband, she did not accompany him on his Southern jaunt.

GARDEN SEED.—All kinds of garden seeds, seed potatoes, onion sets, all guaranteed true to name.

Probably Decided To-day.

It is thought that the decision of the Court of Appeals in the Breathitt-Fayette jurisdiction case for the custody of the Hargises and others will be announced to-day. It is believed in Frankfort that the writ of prohibition asked for will be granted, sending the case to Breathitt for trial unless later removed on petition by the Commonwealth for a change of venue.

Hager Off to Hot Springs.

State Auditor Hager left Saturday night for Hot Springs, Ark., to recuperate his health. Before leaving he installed Judge Charles E. Booe, of Fleming county, as Assistant Auditor, in place of W. Jule Day, of Louisville, who continues in the office in a clerical capacity.

Gen. Percy Haley has gone with Auditor Hager, and the Governor may go later. Hope it will do them all good, but the water will have to be mighty hot to sweat out some of the promises stowed away under the rhinoceros hides of these affable gentlemen.

Circuit Court Convenes Monday.

The March term of the Bourbon Circuit Court convenes in this city on Monday, March 13, with the following large docket: Old equity, 152; old ordinary, 75; appearances, 44. The Commonwealth docket is also unusually large.

W. H. WEBB'S Fire Insurance Agency can insure your property against Fire and Windstorms in old line reliable companies at reasonable rates.

TOBACCO COTTON.—Tobacco cotton from the cheapest to the best quality can be found at my store.

The Hemp Market.

Yesterday's Lexington Herald said: "Hemp took a tumble last Saturday and the price fell from $5.25 a hundred to $5 a hundred." Paris is a better hemp market than Lexington for after reading the above we began to investigate, and found that Chas. S. Brent & Bro., of this city, purchased several crops yesterday at $5.15 per hundred.

SPRING PATTERNS.—We have just received the largest stock of wall paper we have ever had. Paper to suit everybody—prices to suit all classes.

THE FAIR.

Real Estate Transfers.

On yesterday, Chas. Luther Talbott transferred to W. D. Hickman 203.97 acres of land, between Riddles Mills and Millersburg, for $16,317.60 cash in hand.

Anna J. Cunningham to J. T. Richie a tract of 14 acres, 1 rood and 16 poles, near Shawhan station, for $4,000.

TO-DAY.—Attend Harry Simon's Towel Sale to-day, he will place on sale 100 dozen Huck Towels at 7½ cents each, or 90 cents per dozen. Not more than 2 dozen to a customer.

Recent Tobacco Sales.

Last week there were 231,500 pounds of tobacco sold in Bourbon to the different buyers at good prices, the lot selling from 9 to 13 cents. Several small crops in the above estimate sold at only 4 to 5 cents. We have no doubt missed quite a number of crops, but the figures given show that tobacco puts many dollars into circulation in our county.

WALL PAPER.—New wall paper will brighten the rooms made dingy by long months of smoky fires. My wall paper stock surpasses any in Central Kentucky, and you get it for less than at other places.

Beginning of Evangelistic Meeting.

The Union Evangelistic Meeting began Sunday evening at the Methodist Church, and by the large and attentive congregation present it would seem that our Christian people are eager for the fight against the devil and his angels. Rev. J. S. Malone, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, preached one of the most earnest, eloquent and inspiring sermons ever heard from a Paris pulpit. The singing by the large chorus, composed of the choirs of all the churches, was excellent and soul stirring.

Taken all in all, we believe it to be the beginning of one of the greatest, if not the greatest, revival meetings ever held in Paris. The preachers, the singers and the people seemed to have this kind of appearance to us and we trust our prediction will come true. The wave that has been sweeping over the country has surely reached our city.

Two services will be held daily at the Methodist Church, one at 3 o'clock in afternoon and in the evening at 7 o'clock.

Tinged With Romance.

Paris had a wedding Saturday afternoon that if not tinged with romance was somewhat of a novel affair to the citizens who gathered to witness it. Mr. James Stull, a farmer of Pine Grove, Ky., and Mrs. Jessie Belle Morris, of Muir, Ky., were the loving and timid participants. The couple drove to town behind a high stepping gelding in a rubber tired buggy, secured their license from the accommodating "Bally," and before we hardly found out what kind of license was granted, Rev. J. L. Clark, of the M. E. Church, was standing at the side of the buggy, which stood on the public square, pronouncing them man and wife. A dog fight heretofore held the record for drawing a big crowd quick in this town, but the marriage in a buggy in front of the Court House wins out over the dog fight. Several hundred enthusiastic admirers witnessed the nuptials Saturday without a single bark, growl or a card. Last heard from the happy pair was still in the buggy near the Clark county line enroute home.

Volunteer Contributions.

That Paris and Bourbon County needs a hospital no one doubts. Now let the volunteer subscriptions begin to roll in to the Paris Hospital Fund. These kind of contributions will encourage the ladies that have started this worthy movement. Back up your boast that Paris needs this institution by giving your funds. Remember that it will be for the sake of humanity in the truest sense of the word. The hospital is going to be built and it will do you lots of good in years to come to look at the handsome structure and know your money had helped to establish such an institution, where so many sufferers had been relieved. Let the ladies hear from you.

Wills Probated.

The will of the late James M. Hughes was probated yesterday by Judge H. C. Smith. The estate is bequeathed to his wife, Mrs. Rebecca A. Hughes, and to his daughter, Mrs. Bruce Miller. The widow is appointed executrix without bond.

On yesterday, the will of the late John T. Talbott was probated at County Clerk's office. He left all of his estate to his wife, with the request that she pay $1,000 to Martha Cotter and $800 to Mrs. Mollie Kate Myers. The widow, Mrs. Lucinda Talbott, was made executrix with will annexed.

The Dog Poisoner Busy.

About fifty dead canines were found scattered over the town yesterday morning. One or two valuable hunting dogs were among the number, as is generally the case when poison is scattered promiscuously through the streets. There is a way to get rid of the worthless curs in a humane manner without resorting to this cruel and heartless way. We have no respect for a man that uses this method, and if he was known the dead dogs would probably be held in higher esteem by the people of the community than their slayer.

REMEMBER March is the month of windstorms. Insure your residences, barns and warehouses now. Tornado rates are very cheap. Apply to W. H. Webb's Fire Insurance Agency.

A Fair Court-Day.

A large crowd attended Court yesterday and business was more brisk than for some time. About 200 cattle offered. About seventy mules were on the market and sold at unusually high figures, ranging from $100 to $210 per head. Horses were in good demand, plugs ranging from $30 to $40; good work horses bringing $65 to $125. Several fancy saddle and harness horses sold from $150 to $275. A few milk cows brought $38 to $45. Merchants report big trade in all lines.

MAMMA'S DIRT

Ev'ry night when shadows fly
And the house-work is put by
And shut-eyed I sit and dream
Of the light on some far stream
Of the blooms I used to know
In some field of long ago,
Then I wonder wearily
If the present holds for me
Half the joys of other days,
Half the gladness of old ways,
And sometimes my eyes are wet
With a half-forgotten regret;
Then comes romping in to me
And up-climbers on my knee
Such a blue-eyed laughing sprite
As puts weariness to flight;
Such as makes the present seem
More than yesterday, a dream
Of sweet things; and so I smile
O'er regrets of other while,
And she says, and twists a curl:
"I am mamma's baby girl!"
And, the while I bless my lot,
Whispers: "Mamma had forgot!"

I had not forgot, ah, no!
Memory will sometime go
Down the ways we used to tread,
Ways with wondrous blossoms spread;
It is not that we regret
These old ways we don't forget,
It is just that laughter rang,
Just that lilting birds sang
O'er those ways of yesterday
That still makes their memory dear;
But I'm happier to-day
Than I was down any way
That my young feet used to tread;
Skies are bluer overhead,
And to-day's birds sing more clear
Than did birds of yesterday;
I have got you by my side,
Bonny-haired and wonder-eyed,
You who clamber to my knee,
You whose laugh is full of glee,
And I'm happy; happy? Yes!
Glad for ev'ry sweet caress,
For each dimpling smile and curl!
Thankful for my "baby girl!"
—J. M. Lewis, in Houston Post.

The Iron Brigade

A STORY OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC

By GEN. CHARLES KING

Author of "Norman Hot," "The Colonel's Daughter," "Fort Frayne," Etc.

Copyright, 1902, by G. W. Dillingham Co.

His big boy Hector was "grooming" hawes," and from this point would lead him on up the east face of the range until near the Hedgman. He knew that country well, whereas old Dan did not, and the latter had to hurry home so that he might show about the Chilton place as usual. Miss Rosalie had ordered that, too. They would do anything in the world for her—or for the doctor.

And so, once more, but in broad daylight now, and well up along the heights, they came at last in view of the twisting mountain road that pierced the range—Jackson's runaway from the Shenandoah down to Gordonsville—and here again Fred lurked in hiding, while Hector scrambled down afoot to try the pass.

Ten o'clock had come before Hector reappeared, big-eyed, panting. There were 200 soldiers to the west of the Gap digging forts, a squad in every farmhouse along the road, and about as much chance of a Yankee officer crossing in daylight as there was "of a needle's eye a-gittin' into heaven." Hector had been plausibly taught at some time in his life—and now he looked at the blue and the brass buttons in dismay.

Benton thought it over. The guard were to come for him at six, and long ere this had discovered his escape. Pursuit and search would of course be made. "Anybody own bloodhounds around Charlottesville?" he asked, and Hector said "No." Still Dan had gone back, Dan might be lashed and tortured until he revealed what he knew—such things had happened—and the sooner Benton reached the upper waters of the Rappahannock and secure hiding places back of Warrenton, known to Hector, the better it would be for him—for all. He doubted not that by noon couriers would come galloping out from Gordonsville telling of his escape and ordering guards and sentries on the lookout everywhere along the Gap.

"Not a second to lose!" He sprang to the saddle-bags and began a search. What had occurred to him would probably have occurred to her, and it was Miss Rosalie, Dan affirmed, who packed them. With eager hands Benton pulled at the contents of the nearmost—a flask of brandy from the doctor's store, towel, handkerchiefs, sponge, soap, comb and brush, socks, shirt and underwear—Jack's, of course, and probably a tight fit; small tin boxes containing ground coffee, sugar and other things—no time to examine now! Then came a shout from Hector, rummaging on the other side, and over the broad back of Marse Pelham's old Pyramus came a worn gray sack coat and waistcoat, of Richmond make, and pinned to the lapel a scrap of paper on which in pencil appeared in Roman characters, not script, these words: "Map and spectacles in coat pocket. Small pistol also. Look out for federals about Warrenton."

In less than half an hour, a tall, pale-faced, studious-looking young man in spectacles, slouch hat and worn sack coat of gray—thrown loosely over a slung right arm—with a dark-brown horse, a doctor's saddle-bags and a darky follower on a nondescript nag, turned deliberately from a mountain path and took the highway to the eastward. A few rods further the road twisted to the left and brought him in view of a mountain cabin, where a squad of soldiers in queer-looking frock coats of dingy gray were filling their canteens. Another of their number, sick and dejected, was squatting on the steps, his sallow face the picture of woe. "Gawt any physic that will cure the cawlic, dawktuh?" drawled a sun-tanned young fellow in sergeant's stripes, and the doctor reined in, studied the patient attentively one moment, then swung out of saddle and stepped to his side. He gravely felt the pulse and glanced at the coated tongue, fumbled a minute at the saddle-bags, stirred a compound into a stone china cup that stood by the trough—a compound whereof powdered sugar, spring water and spirits vini gallici were the sole ingredients, and in three minutes had the satisfaction of seeing the light of reviving interest in the dull eyes of the invalid and receiving the plaudits of half a dozen would-be patients. Gladly would they have held him, though from no hostile intent, as, with apparent serenity yet with thumping heart, he rode away. He had heard enough to make it expedient that he should move at once.

"You're the first dawktuh we've seen since we left home, 'cept those in the army, suh," said the young sergeant. "Guess they need 'em all."

"You're not Virginian, then," hazarded Benton, as he was mounting. "No, suh—Fifteenth Alabama, Trimble's brigade, suh. We b'long down at Gawd'n'sville, but they sent a few companies out this way last night."

"Know any of the Eleventh?" queried Benton, rashly, yet thinking it not unwise to display some knowledge of the southern service—"Lieut. Ladue, of Mobile?" he continued at a venture.

"Not many, suh. They're all with Gen. Longstreet and Anderson down toward Yokhtown."

"Lieut. Ladue ain't!" said the sick man, uplifting his sallow face. "He's on Gen. Ewell's staff—made me ride his hawse this mornin' an' he ain't a mile away this minute."

CHAPTER XIV.

THROUGH THE MESH OF THE FOE.

Late that evening two tired steeds were painfully struggling up a stony, winding pathway among the heights at the headwaters of the Hazel. Dodging hamlets and settlements, fording branch after branch of the Rapidan, keeping ever to the wood-path and byways, Fred's black guide at last had landed him in a sheltered nook among the hills, just as darkness settled down.

Then away went Hector to refill the canteen and get such news as he could. It was late, near nine o'clock, when he came back laden—oats for the horses, corn doggers for their riders and big news for Fred. The Yankees were pushing forward in heavy columns along the Rappahannock, moving perhaps on Culpeper. They could be off at dawn and work eastward until they fell in with the Yankee cavalry that ought to be out on the right flank of McDowell's advance. Hector had a friend who could "baw" a mule and meet them at the ford of the Thornton back of Sperryville, and show a way to the Hedgman. After that if Hector was to go back, Benton would have to shift for himself.

And so, wearied yet refreshed and full of hope, Fred Benton slept until aroused by the din of dogs among the farms below them. It was just at the chill of the earliest dawn. Far down among the scattered settlements there came floating quick, stirring and spirited the soft trumpet notes of the cavalry reveille, played just as he had heard it played four successive mornings on that ambulance journey to the railway. Now, what could this mean but that the squadron had bivouacked far out on their flank, far north, too, of the confederate positions below the Rapidan, and was scouting these mountain by-paths, perhaps in search of him? To Robertson and men of his rank the game might not be worth the candle, but there was that strangely vindictive fellow Lounsberry, armed with power to order hither and yon.

Rousing Hector he told him of the new danger, and the darky's eyes bulged in their sockets. He was up and well scared in less than no time and, taking Benton's glass, disappeared among the rocks and trees up the hillside to the west. There was a look-out, he said, in the branches of an oak, from which much of the country could be seen to the southeast. It was full 20 minutes later and just after Benton had heard the distant signal "boots and saddles" from the same trumpet, when he came scrambling down. No time for coffee, no time for feeding or rubbing the horses, he said. Like as not these troopers would be out searching every by-path. He had seen them doing that after the first Bull Run when a dozen Yankee prisoners broke away from the cars at night and skipped for the mountains. They had all but two of them back inside of 12 hours. Hurriedly saddling, Hector then aided his charge to mount; then again led the way, crooked and devious, through all manner of scrub and tangle; threading ravines, skirting clearings and creeping ever higher toward the crest until the foothills at last were left far below. Then on again northward, and, so tortuous was their way, so many were the halts, making on a bee line little more than a mile an hour, they bored through the wilderness until late in the afternoon, from a bare projecting ledge, they obtained their first unimpeded view of the eastward, and saw the North Fork, the Hedgman, like a silver thread.

That night the moon stood high toward the zenith. By midnight it would sink behind the Blue Ridge, and Benton ordered "forward" while the faint light lasted, despite Hector's demuror. They must try to cross the Hedgman while the moon served, then hide in the woods on the further shore until the dawn of another day.

A scarily ride was that to the lowlands, but toward ten o'clock they struck a wood path, and began to stir the dogs of scattered homesteads in the foot hills. A sudden turn of the path brought them to the edge of a cleared field and in view of a scattered shed or two. Then came double challenge. First the impudent snarl and dash of a brace of back country mongrels; then the stern "Halt thar! Dis-mount!" of a cavalry vedette, starting from the shadow of a clump of stunted trees, not 50 feet away.

Before Hector, limp and trembling, could slip to earth in obedience to the order, Benton's hand was on his arm, lugging him back into saddle, while his heels made vigorous play. "Stoop low, you fool, and follow!" he swore between his set teeth as he whirled his horse about and at plunging gallop tore westward again by the way they came. A shot rang out. A bullet went whizzing into the shrubbery, but before the solitary sentry could reload, or the men from the picket reach him, Benton and Hector were 400 yards away back along the wood path and heading through the darkness for the higher refuge of the hills. Unwittingly they struck a northward-bending path at an unseen fork, and there, as no sound of pursuit reached them, Benton bade Hector cease his terrific heeling of his horse's ribs, and gladly enough the half-blown beasts came down to heaving walk. The ill luck that had led them into the outermost picket of the confederate force turned to blessing when, near midnight, they found themselves at an unguarded reach of this far-away branch of the Rappahannock, and the thirsting horses, eager for drink, found their own ford to the other shore.

Toward noon their startled ears caught the sound of hoof-beats on the hillside, and there came shambling into sight a wild-eyed negro on a remonstrant mule. "Run, Marse!" he cried, at sight of Benton. "Run, fo' Gawd's sake! Dey's 100 sojers huntin' every house an' bahn just over the hill, suh, and comin' dis way!" Then came a ride almost for life. They turned into a lane leading away southeastward between desolate fields; halted to "blow" their panting, reeking horses at a little clump of trees near a southward sweep of the mill stream—Broad Run—then Benton unslung his glass and took deliberate survey of the distant hills, then of the country over which they had come, and, spurring like mad down a slope of the heights, barely three miles back of them, came a dozen gray horsemen. "They've seen us," said he, as quietly as he could, and Hector's trembling hands helped him again to mount. Then away dashed the pair for the first ford of the stream, only to see as they rode out dripping on the opposite bank that the distant fringe of the Manassas woods looked far away as ever. Oh, for a sight of union flankers now!

A long half hour they rode, as fast as jaded steed could bear them, but Hector's horse was nearly done. The spare oak openings, the scattered copses, now were only half a mile ahead, but southward, cutting them off from Bristol, galloped a jaunty half dozen, following the lead of a dashing rider. Behind them, still beyond carbine range but slowly gaining, full 20 troopers were spreading out over the open fields, "turning" them, as it were, from the left. The soil was growing loose and soft and spongy now that they had left the lanes, and every now and then they plunged through holes, deep and treacherous, but still they lashed ahead, Hector's poor brute groaning—staggering with every stride. Presently the ground began slowly rising and the woods grew thick. If only they could reach them! Surely the union pickets must be close at hand, and now, as they drove in among the clumps of stunted trees, they lost sight of the troopers to the south. Now the yells of those in rear became exultant, and still came no shot. Then, as they struggled through a boggy slough, with sickening groan Hector's exhausted horse went down and floundered helplessly in the mud, his wretched rider dragging himself from underneath, and, limping to the foot of a tree, fell gasping and terrified. "Oh, Gawd, don't leave me, Marse Benton!" he pleaded in agony. "Doan' leave me or dey'll kill me, suah." With one glance at the cheering chase, one longing look at the eastward slopes, Benton sprang from the saddle, and with firm-set lips and flashing eyes, he planted himself between the yelling troopers and the prostrate, helpless, humble friend.

Bursting through the trees, the foremost riders drove straight at him. "Down with that pistol!" shouted a voice in stern command. "Don't shoot, men; he's wounded! Drop your pistol, suh. We're ten to one!" And realizing the hopelessness of fight, Fred Benton tossed his puny weapon away.

But what meant that sudden shot to the southward?—what that spluttering volley, that burst of cheers? "The major!" "The Yanks!" "Come on, come on!" were the shouts. Away darted half the mud-spattered group, and then, sudden as the shot, in spurred a breathless young officer "Mount, sur, instantly! Help him, corporal. Up with you, suh! We haven't a moment." Rough, powerful hands fairly lifted him into saddle. Another hand seized the reins of his horse. "Come on now, lively!" was the order. "Get him back out o' range. We've run slap into a brigade, general and all. Off with you—to Buckland, you two! The rest of you come with me to the major. What'll we do with the niggah? Damn the niggah—we've no time to bother with him!"

Daring and devoted, away went the young gallants to the support of their chief, only to meet the riderless horses tearing through the glade, only to see platoon after platoon of a blue-jacketed squadron issuing from the southward woods. "Charge as foragers," rang the distant trumpets, as the leader's eyes swept over the scene and saw the pitiful few in his front, and, with a wild burst of cheers, and sabers flashing on high, the long line sprang forward, fan-like; then, every man for himself, came tearing northward across the field.

An hour later, defiant and superbly disdainful of his surroundings, Maj. Lounsberry was being interrogated by Capt. Carver of the division staff, while three or four other officers in blue hovered about the little frame farmhouse to which the prisoner had been conducted.

"You may spare yourself the trouble of questioning me, suh," said he with appropriate hauteur. "I decline to answer. Wait till you see Dr. Chilton," he added, with sneering triumph, "if he isn't already hanged for a traitor. You've seen the last of your friend Benton, I reckon. Perhaps he could have told you."

"I reckon he could," said Carver, imperturbably, as he glanced toward the door at Lounsberry's back. "How is it, Benton, is Ewell at Gordonsville?"

CHAPTER XV.

LINCOLN'S DILEMMA.

"The president desires to see Lieut. Benton of your staff," wrote the adjutant general, three weeks later, to the division commander and, just at a time when he hated to go, for there seemed a prospect of a forward dash on Gordonsville, the aide-de-camp found himself enroute. A confederate gallant, painfully wounded in charge of Benton, was being escorted to Washington. He had refused parole. He would rather share the fate of Lounsberry, said he, if his wounds speedily healed, or of poor Floyd Pelham, still languishing in hospital, if the wounds proved baffling. How much those fellows seemed to know of everything transpiring within the union divisions! Just what had been done with Lounsberry and Pelham—just where they were confined and everything connected with their capture was all told at Charlottesville almost as soon as at Washington. How little, until long weeks after, as a rule, did our generals know of the daily doings beyond the picket posts along the front! With sorrow and anxiety inexpressible Benton heard that in spite of Dr. Chilton's long years of kindness and generosity among his townsfolk—in spite of Rosalie's acknowledged queendom, an almost bitter feeling now existed, and there was talk of arrest and incarceration at Richmond. Not until he had studied Benton for several days did young Winston admit all this—and more. He had heard it through officers at Robertson's headquarters. He had known the Chiltons well when he was a junior at the 'varsity. He had often seen Lounsberry and had heard much of his standing and influence—had heard, moreover, that he had been a devotee of Miss Rosalie's. "However," with a quick glance at Benton's face, which colored instantly, even under its coat of tan and sunburn, "Lounsberry didn't seem to find favor." There was some trouble, he didn't know what, and Maud Pelham had "had a flare up" with Rosalie, and that was something people didn't understand, for Jack Chilton was as much smitten with her as Lounsberry had been with Miss Chilton. "Don't s'pose you heard much about it," said he in the confidence bred of the unlooked-for kindness with which he had been treated, but adding, with an apologetic laugh, "they do say at Charlottesville that Miss Rosalie just ruled everybody about her like she was a bohn queen."

Benton was most unwilling to leave the front, for there were indications of brisk work and a forward movement that might relieve the situation. Letters from home had showered him with blessings and congratulations on his escape. The squire was now full of a scheme to come on to Washington, bringing Elinor with him, but, much as she longed to see her brother, the girl was now loth to leave home—Mrs. Ladue was swiftly failing and seemed to need her gentle nurse more and more with every day.

Awkward Situation.

It is said that when President Polk visited Boston he was impressively received at Faneuil Hall Market. Secretary Rhodes walked in front of him down the length of the market, announcing in loud tones: "Make way, gentlemen, for the president of the United States! Fellow citizens, make room!" The chief executive had stepped into one of the stalls to look at some game, when Mr. Rhodes, the secretary, turned around suddenly, and finding himself alone, promptly changed his tone, and exclaimed: "My gracious, where has that damned idiot got to?"—Argonaut.

HE HAD THEM SCRAMBLED.

Gave His Order for Eggs in a Somewhat Puzzling Way, and Something Happened.A salesman in a department store who possesses considerable wit entered a restaurant in the central section of the city the other day, and, finding the waiter had been a recent arrival from Ireland, told him he wanted two fried eggs, says the Philadelphia Press."I want one egg fried on one side, and the other egg fried on the other side, and I want them quick," the salesman added.
"Would you kindly write that on a piece of paper?" said the waiter."I haven't got time. Be quick, I tell you.""One fried egg fried on both sides and the other fried egg fried on the other side," muttered the Irishman as he was leaving the table.In a few minutes the salesman heard much commotion in the kitchen. There were loud words and they were punctuated with sounds which seemed like blows.Presently the waiter appeared much excited, and, rushing up to the salesman, exclaimed:"Say, I had a terrible fight with the cook about those eggs and you'll have to take them scrambled."

Unpleasantly Suggestive.

When the editor of an English paper received a fine chicken he believed it to be a token from some appreciative reader. After the editor had enjoyed a dinner in which the supposed gift played a part, he received a letter from a man who said: "I sent you a chicken in order to settle a dispute which has arisen here. Can you tell us what the chicken died of?"—

THE TRICKS

Coffee Plays on Some.

It hardly pays to laugh before you are certain of facts, for it is sometimes humiliating to think of afterwards."When I was a young girl I was a lover of coffee but was sick so much
the doctor told me to quit and I did,
but after my marriage my husband begged me to drink it again as he did not think it was the coffee caused the troubles.""So I commenced it again and continued about 6 months until my stomach commenced acting bad and choking as if I had swallowed something the size of an egg. One doctor said it was neuralgia and indigestion.""One day I took a drive with my husband three miles in the country
and I drank a cup of coffee for dinner.
I thought sure I would die before I got back to town to a doctor. I was drawn double in the buggy and when my husband hitched the horse to get me out into the doctor's office, misery came up in my throat and seemed to shut my breath off entirely, then left
all in a flash and went to my heart.
The doctor pronounced it nervous heart trouble and when I got home I was so weak I could not sit up.""My husband brought my supper to my bedside with a nice cup of hot coffee, but I said: 'Take that back, dear,
I will never drink another cup of coffee if you gave me anything you are worth, for it is just killing me.' He and the others laughed at me and said:"The idea of coffee killing anybody.""Well, I said, 'It is nothing else
but coffee that is doing it.'""In the grocery one day my husband was persuaded to buy a box of Postum
which he brought home and I made it for dinner and we both thought how good it was but said nothing to the hired men and they thought they had drank coffee until we laughed and told them. Well we kept on with Postum and it was not long before the color came back to my cheeks and I got out and felt as good as I ever did in my life. I have no more stomach trouble.""I know I owe it all to a place of coffee."My husband has gained good health
as well as baby and I, and I think nothing is too good to eat." Name given by Postum Creek, Mich.OUR DUTIES AND RESPONSIBILITIESTHE INAUGURAL ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

CAUSE FOR THANKFULNESS

He Says We Have Obligations Both
to Ourselves and to the World and Can Shirk Neither.Washington, March 4.—The following is the text of President Roosevelt's inaugural address:My Fellow Citizens: No people on earth have more cause to be thankful
than ours, and this is said reverently,
in no spirit of boastfulness in our own strength, but with gratitude to the Giver of Good Who has blessed us with the conditions which have enabled us to achieve so large a measure of well being and of happiness. To us as a people it has been granted to lay the foundation
of our national life in a new continent.
We are the heirs of the ages, and yet
we have had to pay few of the penalties which in old countries are exacted by the dead hand of a bygone civilization.
We have not been obliged to fight for our existence against any alien race;
and yet our life has called for the vigor
and effort without which the manlier and harder virtues wither away. Under such conditions it would be our own fault if we failed; and the success which we have had in the past, the success
which we confidently believe the future will bring, should cause in us no feeling of vain glory, but rather a deep and abiding realization of all which life has offered us; a full acknowledgment of the responsibility which is ours; and a fixed determination to show that under a free government a mighty people can thrive best, alike as regards the things of the body and the things of the soul.Much has been given to us, and much will rightfully be expected from us. We have duties to others and duties to ourselves; and we can shirk neither. We have become a great nation, forced by the fact of its greatness into relations with the other nations of the earth;
and we must behave as befits a people with such responsibilities. Toward all other nations, large and small, our attitude must be one of cordial and sincere friendship. We must show not only in our words, but in our deeds that we are earnestly desirous of securing their good will by acting toward them in a spirit of just and generous recognition of all their rights. But justice and generosity in a nation, as in an individual, count most when shown not by the weak, but by the strong. While ever careful to refrain from wronging others,
we must be no less insistent that we are not wronged ourselves. We wish peace;
the peace of righteousness. We wish it because we think it is right, and not because we are afraid. No weak nation that acts manfully and justly should ever have cause to fear us, and no strong power should ever be able to single us out as a subject for insolent aggression.Our relations with the other powers of the world are important; but still more important are our relations among ourselves. Such growth in wealth, in population and in powers as this nation
has seen during the century and a quarter of its national life is inevitably accompanied by a like growth in the problems which are ever before every nation that rises to greatness. Power invariably means both responsibility and danger. Our forefathers faced certain perils which we have outgrown. We now face other perils the very existence of which it was impossible that they should foresee. Modern life is both complex and intense, and the tremendous changes wrought by the extraordinary industrial development of the last half century are felt in every fiber of our social and political being.The conditions which have told for our marvelous material well-being,
which have developed to a very high degree our energy, self-reliance and individual initiative, have also brought the care and anxiety inseparable from the accumulation of great wealth in industrial centers. Upon the success of our experiment much depends; not only as regards our own welfare, but as regards the welfare of mankind. If we fail, the cause of free self-government throughout the world will rock to its foundations; and therefore, our responsibility is heavy, to ourselves, to the world as it is to-day, and to the generations yet unborn.Yet, after all, though the problems are new, though the tasks set before us differ
from the tasks set before our fathers who founded and preserved this republic, the spirit in which these tasks must be undertaken and these problems faced,
if our duty is to be well done, remains essentially unchanged. We know that self-government is difficult. We know that no people needs such high traits of character as that people which seeks to govern its affairs aright through the freely expressed will of the free men who compose it. But we have faith that we shall not prove false to the memories of the men of the mighty past. They did their work, they left us the splendid heritage we now enjoy.

Definition of Duty.

A small boy went to Sunday school.
When he went home his mother asked him what the lesson was about.
"Faith," says the boy. "What's that?"
his mother asked. "Believe" what you've got every reason to suppose ain't so," the boy replied. "And then,"
he afterward remarks, "there was some talk about duty, too." "What's duty?" his mother asked him. "Oh,
duty," he replied, "is any old thing
that you have got to do when you want to play baseball."—Chicago Chronicle.

Woman's Kidney Troubles

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Especially Successful in Curing This Fatal Disease.

Mrs. J. W. Lang and Mrs. S. Frake

Of all the diseases known, with which women are afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless early and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham, early in her career, gave exhaustive study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for woman's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—was careful to see that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was sure to control that fatal disease, woman's kidney troubles.
The Vegetable Compound acts in harmony with the laws that govern the entire female system, and while there are many so called remedies for kidney troubles, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women, and thousands have been cured of serious kidney derangements by it. Derangements of the feminine organs quickly affect the kidneys, and when a woman has such symptoms as pain or weight in the loins, backache, bearing down pains,
urine too frequent, scanty or high colored, producing scalding or burning,
or deposits like brick dust in it; unusual thirst, swelling of hands and feet,
swelling under the eyes or sharp pains
in the back running down the inside of her groin, she may be sure her kidneys are affected and should lose no time in combating the disease with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, the woman's remedy for woman's ills.The following letters show how marvelously successful it is.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; a Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills.

Mrs. Samuel Frake, of Prospect
Plains, N. J., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
I cannot thank you enough for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I first wrote to you I had suffered for years with what the doctor called kidney trouble and congestion of the womb.
My back ached dreadfully all the time, and I suffered so with that bearing-down feeling I could hardly walk across the room. I did not get any better, so decided to stop doctoring with my physician and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am thankful to say it has entirely cured me. I do all my own work, have no more backache and all the bad symptoms have disappeared.
I cannot praise your medicine enough, and would advise all women suffering with kidney trouble to try it.Mrs. J. W. Lang, of 626 Third Avenue, New York, writes:Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— I have been a great sufferer with kidney trouble. My back ached all the time and I was discouraged. I heard that Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure
kidney disease, and I began to take it; and it has cured me when everything else had failed.
I have recommended it to lots of people and they all praise it very highly.Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.Women suffering from kidney trouble, or any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Out of the great volume of experience which she has to draw from,
it is more than likely she has the very
knowledge that will help your case.
Her advice is free and always helpful.
